WELCOME!

U.S. Customs and Border Protection

Origins

- Mounted watchmen of the U.S. Immigration Service patrolled the border as early as 1904.
- In 1915, Congress authorized a separate group called Mounted Inspectors.
- The military also performed intermittent border patrolling.

Prohibition

- Prohibition and numerical limits being placed on immigration led to the establishment of the U.S. Border Patrol on May 28, 1924.
- The Border Patrol was given the mission of securing the borders between inspection stations.

Early Years

- Many of the early agents were recruited from the Texas Rangers and local law enforcement.
- The majority of the Border Patrol was assigned to the Canadian border.
- By 1935, horses began to give way to motorized vehicles as the transportation of choice.

War Years

- In 1940, the Immigration Service was moved from the Department of Labor to the Department of Justice.
- During the war, the Patrol provided tighter control of the border, manned alien detention camps, guarded diplomats, and assisted the U.S. Coast Guard.

Expansion

- In 1952 agents were first permitted to board and search a conveyance for illegal immigrants anywhere in the United States.
- For the first time, illegal entrants traveling within the country were subject to arrest.

Economic Impact

Commerce in the San Diego border region serves as a critical economic engine through thriving commercial businesses and tens of thousands of people who legally cross the border from Mexico to the U.S. on a daily basis.

The Las Americas Premium Outlets alone accounted for more than $227 million in taxable sales in 2010, which would be nonexistent without local enhancements in border security throughout the past two decades. This shopping attraction is in a city redevelopment area, so a portion of its property tax revenue is devoted to revitalizing the city of San Ysidro.
